

Name _____

Student Materials

Supporting Question One: What Gives Native Nations a Sense of Belonging to the Land?

Part A—Reciprocity

Directions: Reciprocity means to give and take, a relationship that has a mutual benefit. Think about reciprocal relationships you might know about or be able to describe.

Part B—Relationships to Land

Directions: After analyzing the sources using the resource annotator, select three sources from the case study that best exemplify relationships Native Nations have with the land. These relationships might be physical, spiritual, familial, emotional, cultural, etc. Explain the relationship in your own words.

Case Study Nation Name:	Selected Source 1 (Name the source)	Selected Source 2 (Name the source)	Selected Source 3 (Name the source)
Get Started: List the kinds of relationships you observed...	What does the evidence say about relationships? Describe the relationships you observed in each source.
	Relationship 1:	Relationship 2:	Relationship 3:
Cite your claims: Quote or phrase the sources that support your explanations.	What does the evidence say? Use quotes or paraphrase evidence from the sources you selected that back up your explanation.

Name _____

Part C—Relationships and Reciprocity

Directions: Share out with your peers the types of relationships you observed in Part A between Native Nations of the Northern Plains and the land. Then discuss how these relationships can be viewed as reciprocal. Record your claims below.

Crow	Northern Cheyenne
Types of relationships...	Types of relationships...
In what ways does the Crow Nation have a reciprocal relationship with the land?	In what ways does the Northern Cheyenne Nation have a reciprocal relationship with the land?
Oceti Sakowin	Three Affiliated
Types of relationships...	Types of relationships...
In what ways does the Oceti Sakowin Nation have a reciprocal relationship with the land?	In what ways do the Three Affiliated Tribes have a reciprocal relationship with the land?