

U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Portland District Visual Information

The Columbia River is one of the largest river systems in the Pacific Northwest region of North America. The Columbia and its tributaries have long been central to the region's Native cultures and economies. Today, there are more than sixty dams in the Columbia River watershed.