

Courtesy of Muckleshoot Food Sovereignty Project

Valerie Segrets and works with community members to maintain a two-acre orchard that boasts dozens of varieties of local fruits, all planted by hand without use of machines. Raised garden beds provide traditional foods that are harvested and prepared in lunches for Muckleshoot elders.