Centuries of Change: State of the Native Nations addresses recent international trends in the search for pragmatic indigenous and nation-state solutions developed with the Native peoples of the Americas. It takes a particular look at the work of the Organization of American States with respect to the human rights, land rights, and civil rights of indigenous peoples. With the bicentennials of several Latin American countries taking place in 2010, as well as the 100th anniversary of the iconic House of the Americas—seat of the Organization of American States—and the fall anniversary of the opening of the National Museum of the American Indian, it celebrates a year full of historical remembrance.
